Vision

The Comox Valley has clean air that supports the health of all residents

Currently, the Comox Valley experiences recurring period of poor air quality that negatively affect the health of our communities. Achieving this vision is complex and will require coordinated efforts from several governments, organizations, industry, and community members. Our actions need to be effective in order to continually improve air quality, with an initial focus on reducing PM2.5 – the air pollutant of the greatest concern to the health of our Comox Valley communities.
